Board Election

March 2007

An election for the four at-large Directors is scheduled for 2007. The AHA Corporation Bylaws proscribe that Directors are elected in odd number years (2007) and Officers are elected in even number years (2008).

The AHA President, Jay Craddock, appointed an Election Committee composed of the Vice President, Ken Moore, the Secretary-Treasurer, John Ruppel, and an association member at large. The committee is responsible for gathering nominations, distributing, collecting, and counting the ballots. The newly elected Directors will be announced at the Association's annual meeting, the Annual Old Timers' Lunch, scheduled for March 28, 2007.

All AHA members in good standing may vote for Director. Ballots have been included in your newsletter if you paid your 2006 membership dues. If your last year's dues were not paid, you are not considered to be in good standing and are not eligible to vote. There are four names on the ballot: CCMS Ed Boddington, CCMS Doug Sale, Lt Col Steve James, and Lt Col Dave Russell. There is no write-in provision. Please vote for four nominees. The nominees with the highest number of votes will be declared Directors, and will be announced and begin their two-year term at the Old Timers' Luncheon.

The self-addressed stamped ballot should be postmarked by March 19, 2007, and mailed to:

Ms. Lynda Taft-Fawcett

The Prez Sez

The President's Column

LTC Jesse Craddock (Ret.)

The Wing successfully completed the ACC administered ORI Phase II; receiving an over all excellent rating. Congratulations to the 129TH Wing Commander Col Amos Bagdasarian, Operations Group Commander Col (Sel) Mark Sheey and all Wing members.

The Old Timers' lunch is scheduled for March 28th at the Castro Valley Loyal Order of Moose Lodge. Brigadier General Gerald Griffin, an Army physician and surgeon, will be the guest speaker. BG Griffin is a true professional with combat zone experience. He took his surgical hospital to Mosul, in northern Iraq, and supported the airborne division fighting there. He will address the challenges he faced while caring for our wounded troops, the Iraqi people – including women and children – and even enemy soldiers. BG Griffin will focus on what happens to our soldiers after they are wounded as they are treated locally and transported to Europe and the U.S.

Lunch is $15 per person, and reservations must be received no later than March 21, 2007. Please contact Lynda Fawcett if you have questions regarding the luncheon.

Ballots are included in the newsletter for those members in good standing. If you have not paid your 2006 dues, you have not received a ballot. The postage paid ballot must be postmarked by March 19, 2007.

The Association 2007 dues are $10 and now payable. Statements have been mailed to members with a dues obligation. You may include your dues with your Old Timers' Luncheon reservation.

The Association will award two Wing members 2006 Scholarships. The formal presentation will occur during the Old Timers' lunch. We have been able to increase the scholarships' value because several Association members have provided Scholarship Program contributions. The Board extends special thanks to these members for their generosity and support. Congratulations to the awardees. We wish them continued success in their educational endeavors.

Special thanks to our Newsletter Editor, Lynda Fawcett, for all her work on both the newsletter and the luncheon. We much appreciate the time and effort she contributes to the Association.

I'll look forward to chatting with those who attend the Old Timers' lunch. If you cannot attend the lunch please feel free to email your comments to B25jay@sbcglobal.net.

Be sure to mail your ballots and get your lunch reservations in early!

Airmen to See New Combat Medal

Military.com (02/05/2007)

Airmen involved in combat operations, on the ground and in the air, will see the unveiling of the Air Force Combat Action Medal (AFCAM) some time in April. In order for an Airman to wear the AFCAM, a narrative explanation of the Airman's involvement in combat activities must be submitted by a person with first-hand knowledge of the incident. The application will be processed through the chain of command and eventually be approved or disapproved by the Commander of Air Force Forces (COMAFFOR). Airmen can apply for the award to recognize participation in combat activities dating back as far as Sept. 11, 2001.

Many vets may be missing out on special compensation

Air Force Retiree News Service

RANDOLPH AIR FORCE BASE, Texas (AFRNS) – Just because an Air Force veteran was not injured storming the beaches at Normandy does not mean he or she may not be entitled to receive Combat-Related Special Compensation.

Many Air Force veterans may be missing out on hundreds, if not thousands, of dollars every month because they have not applied for the compensation, said Ann Lacey of the CRSC office at the Air Force Personnel Center here.

“Don’t let the term ‘combat’ throw you; there are many circumstances which are combat related that could justify approval of extra tax-free money for you!” she said.

CRSC is designed to restore military retirement pay that has been offset by Department of Veterans Affairs compensation when evidence exists to confirm the associated disabilities are combat related. For example, if a veteran is currently rated for a disability of 10 percent with the VA, he or she receives a check from the VA for $115 each month, but his or her retired pay is reduced by that same amount. If that disability is found to be combat-related by the CRSC review board, he or she would continue to receive the monthly check from the VA for $115 along with the remainder of the retired pay, but begin to receive an additional monthly check from CRSC for $115.

Many disabilities that resulted from conditions during peacetime may meet the criteria for CRSC, said Ms. Lacey. As examples she cites an aircraft mechanic who works on the flight line and begins to lose his hearing while in-service; a personnel technician who dives for cover during a simulated air raid and injures her shoulder; and a pararescue journeyman who makes a peacetime parachute jump and breaks his ankle upon landing.

“If you’re not sure the circumstances surrounding your disability meet the combat-related criteria, it would be beneficial for you to apply for CRSC and let the board make a determination for you,” Ms. Lacey said.

There are a few prerequisites to consider before submitting a CRSC application. To meet the basic eligibility criteria to be considered for CRSC, veterans must:

- Be retired with 20 (or more) years of active-duty military service, or retired at age 60 from the Guard or Reserve
- Be receiving military retired pay. Veterans who waived military retirement pay for Civil Service credit are not eligible to apply for CRSC.
- Have a compensable VA disability rating of 10 percent or higher.
- Receive military retired pay that is reduced by VA disability payments.

Copies of the Application for Combat-Related Special Compensation, DD Form 2860, and more information on the program can be downloaded from the AFPC Web site at <http://ask.afpc.randolph.af.mil/>. People can call the Air Force CRSC office toll free at (800) 616-3775 for assistance, or e-mail them at afpc.dppdc.afcrsc@randolph.af.mil.

Ms. Lacey believes applying is worth the effort.

“It will take a little time to complete the application and make copies of your documentation, but it could mean qualifying for monthly tax-free compensation for the rest of your life,” she said.

The Secretary – Treasurer's Report

Col John L. Ruppel, Jr. (Ret.)

The annual financial statement is presented below. The current dues assessment provides the required funds to support the various programs and insure financial liquidity. The Board revised the Scholarship Program award policy limiting awards to the funds generated in any one business year. Additionally, the number of scholarships was decreased but the amount was increased to encourage more applications and insure an adequate reserve is maintained. If you have questions or comments, please contact me by email or at the Old Timers' Luncheon. Your continued support is appreciated

Reserve, Guard Time Limit Lifted (Military.com 01/12/2007)

The Pentagon has abandoned its limit on the time a Citizen-Soldier can be required to serve on active duty, officials said Thursday, a major change that reflects an Army stretched thin by longer-than-expected combat in Iraq.

Until now, the Pentagon's policy on the Guard or Reserve was that members' cumulative time on active duty for the Iraq or Afghan wars could not exceed 24 months. That cumulative limit is now lifted; the remaining limit is on the length of any single mobilization, which may not exceed 24 consecutive months.

In other words, a Citizen-Soldier could be mobilized for a 24-month stretch in Iraq or Afghanistan, then demobilized and allowed to return to civilian life, only to be mobilized a second time for as much as an additional 24 months. In practice, the Pentagon intends to limit all future mobilizations to 12 months.

Members of the Guard combat brigades that have served in Iraq in recent years spent 18 months on active duty - about six months in pre-deployment training in the United States, followed by about 12 months in Iraq. Under the old policy, they could not be sent back to Iraq because their cumulative time on active duty would exceed 24 months. Now that cumulative limit has been lifted, giving the Pentagon more flexibility. The new approach, Pace said, is to squeeze the training, deployment and demobilization into a maximum of 12 months.

Although the Pentagon's goal is to mobilize Guard and Reserve units no more frequently than one year out of six, the demands of wartime will require calling up some units more often than that. They provided no details on how many units would be remobilized at the faster pace or when that would begin to happen.

To allow for more cohesion among Guard and Reserve units sent into combat, they will be deployed as whole units, rather than as partial units or as individuals plugged into a unit they do not normally train with.

Extra pay will be provided for Guard and Reserve troops who are required to mobilize more than once in six years; active-duty troops who get less than two years between overseas deployments also will get extra pay. Details were not provided.
